

Name _____

Date _____

Analyze Problem and Solution Relationships

In many stories or texts, authors followed the problem-solution structure to push the development of the story and engaged readers. The problem is something that goes wrong or creates a challenge, while the solution is how the problem is solved.

Read each story carefully. Identify the problem and how it was solved.

Emma's Lost Backpack

Emma was walking home from school when she realized she had left her backpack in the classroom. She was worried because her homework was inside, and it was due the next day. First, she tried calling her teacher, but no one answered. Then, she asked her mom if they could go back to the school, but the building was already closed. Finally, Emma decided to wake up early the next morning and get to school before class started. She found her backpack in her classroom, and her homework was safe!

ProblemEvent 1*Event 2*Event 3*Solution

Name _____

Date _____

Problem and Solution Relationships – Answer Key

In many stories or texts, authors followed the problem-solution structure to push the development of the story and engaged readers. The problem is something that goes wrong or creates a challenge, while the solution is how the problem is solved.

Read each story carefully. Identify the problem and how it was solved.

Emma's Lost Backpack

Emma was walking home from school when she realized she had left her backpack in the classroom. She was worried because her homework was inside, and it was due the next day. First, she tried calling her teacher, but no one answered. Then, she asked her mom if they could go back to the school, but the building was already closed. Finally, Emma decided to wake up early the next morning and get to school before class started. She found her backpack in her classroom, and her homework was safe!

