Proofread the Opinion Paragraph

Proofreading is the final step, where you check for smaller errors, such as grammar, punctuation, spelling, and capitalization mistakes. It ensures your writing is polished and error-free.

The following paragraph is from an opinion essay whose writer tries to convince readers to avoid exotic pets. However, there are five errors that need to be proofread. Underline the errors and correct them on the right.

Last year, a neighbor got a dingo. As a puppy, this australian wild dog was very friendly. By the time it wassix months old, though, the dingo was big and mean. After it attacked another dog animal Control had to take the dingo away. what if this neighbor buys a baby crocodile next? Exotic pets might be interesting, but they can also cause a lot of trouble. People should think carefully before buy unusual pets.
