

Name _____

Date _____

Question: How and Why

Questions are inquiries that help us understand, analyze, and think deeper about what we read. Good readers ask questions before, during, and after reading to improve their comprehension.

Read the text, then fill in the chart to ask questions.

Emma wanted to start her own garden in the backyard. She asked her dad to help her choose the best sunny spot near the fence. Together, they dug up the soil and added fresh dirt from the garden center. Emma carefully planted tomato seeds, lettuce seeds, and sunflower seeds in neat rows. She watered them gently with a small watering can every morning before school. After three weeks of daily care, tiny green plants began to sprout.

	Questions I Want to Ask
Where
When
Why
How

Name _____

Date _____

Question: How and Why – Answer Key

Questions are inquiries that help us understand, analyze, and think deeper about what we read. Good readers ask questions before, during, and after reading to improve their comprehension.

Read the text, then fill in the chart to ask questions.

Emma wanted to start her own garden in the backyard. She asked her dad to help her choose the best sunny spot near the fence. Together, they dug up the soil and added fresh dirt from the garden center. Emma carefully planted tomato seeds, lettuce seeds, and sunflower seeds in neat rows. She watered them gently with a small watering can every morning before school. After three weeks of daily care, tiny green plants began to sprout.

	Questions I Want to Ask
Where	Where did Emma start her garden?
When	When did Emma water her plants?
Why	Why did Emma ask her dad for help?
How	How did Emma take care of her plants?